Consider how we mentor and teach new members of our team. Are we mindful about how much we depend on cultural uniformity in the service of communicating technical and management concepts?